

Crowds in Berlin in a demonstration against the acceptance of the terms of the peace treaty. Later there were counter demonstrations in which the demand was made that the terms be accepted at once.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

A new type of veil that is proving very popular with smartly dressed women in London and Paris just now.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

An example of how fliers risk their lives to thrill crowds. Lieut. Milton Elliott and Lieut. Shirley Short are doing some sky vaudeville to amuse thousands of spectators at Sheepshead Bay.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff of New York, a recent photograph. She has recently returned from France, where she drove an ambulance. Over here she has interested herself in various war charities.

Photo by de Strelecki.

The camouflage bathing suit has made its appearance in England and has excited attention if not admiration. Three exponents of the "dazzle" idea are pictured here, disporting themselves on the sands at Margate.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

The delegates from Abyssinia. This is probably the most picturesque of the groups at the Peace Congress. Even in Paris, where almost everything happens, this quartet was the cynosure of all eyes.

Photo by International Film Service.

A wedding dress that seems to possess personality as well as beauty is shown by B. Altman & Co. It is of white satin and is enhanced by shadow lace.